S.R.P.N. Crowns a New Bocce King & Queen for 2026

The crowd of spectators gathered at the Bocce Courts on August 24th to watch the players compete in the first round of elimination at the Annual SRPN Bocce King and Queen Tournament.

Twenty-four teams paired up to play each other that evening, leaving the winning twelve teams to move forward to the next round of competition the following night. Tuesday night, six more teams bit the dust during the first round of play and by the end of the night, only three teams were left to vie for the royal title on Wednesday night's final match-up.

Team Charlie & Carol Lawrence won the bye, as Team Zig Feury & Kathy Savastano battled it out against Team John Starr & Jayne Lombardi. It was a great game with some terrific scoring from both teams, but Jayne and John came out on top, ready to face Charlie and Carol for the title.

The final match-up was underway, and while it was a close game, Jayne and John fell a bit short in getting their bocce balls close enough to the pollino. In the end, they were unable to catch up to the Lawrence's winning score.

It was an awesome game, and the spectators thoroughly enjoyed the final match up, and ALL the Bocce Games.

A big thanks to all the men and women who participated in the competition and this year's Bocce Season

Just A Note

It was 1963 when my parents signed the consent form for my 8-year-old brother, Eddie, to play Pop Warner football. Football. Ugh. Being a typical 11-year-old girl, I had absolutely no interest in football (or my little brother for that matter) but regardless of my feelings, every week the entire family would go to watch him play. We'd sit in the bleachers with the other parents, relatives, and friends who'd stand up and cheer every time their kid was involved in getting a touchdown, or a first down, or when a pass was actually completed.

I sat next to my dad, and during one game, he noticed I wasn't watching anything on the field. "Something wrong?" he asked me. I shrugged my shoulders and replied, "No, I just don't know what's going on." After that, Dad made it his mission to explain football to me – no matter how much eye-rolling I did. Bless his heart; he dumbed-it-down so even his 11-year-old daughter understood it and eventually, I actually enjoyed watching the game.

A few weeks into the season, I was the first one in the car when it was time to go to Eddie's game, yelling, "Let's go people, NOW! We're going to miss kick-off!" And with my understanding of the game, suddenly there was 'something' about being with a bunch of other people cheering for the same team - I couldn't help getting caught up in its energy.

The following year, I tried out for the cheerleading squad since I enjoyed the game and was there every week anyway. Now, I can't do a cartwheel, or a split, or a Russian-jump and yet, I made the squad. Kind of makes you wonder what the criteria was to make the squad. I'm inclined to think it was just showing up and paying for the uniform. I did, however, have a loud voice AND I knew the game ... and honestly, knowing the game should have been a requirement for ALL the cheerleaders! Seriously. A few times, our football team had possession of the ball and some of the cheerleaders would be chanting "GET THAT BALL BACK!". I can't tell you how many times I'd be standing in front of the crowded bleachers, in my bobby-socks and saddle-shoes, hitting my hand against my forehead. Well, that was the first and last time I ever tried out for a cheerleading squad. But I digress ...

Eddie continued to play football every year, through high school, and dang, he was good! And yes, the whole family would be in the bleachers cheering for him at each game.

Now, no one got more into watching my brother's game than my mom. She never stayed seated in the bleachers past the first quarter of a game – she just HAD to be on the field to watch the game. I remember vividly on this one particular game day ...

- The opposing team had possession – fourth down, with the ball around their 10 yard line.
- Mom, as usual, was standing down on the sidelines, by the line of scrimmage.
- The Center snapped the ball to the Quarterback - he threw it and, lo and behold, Eddie intercepted the pass!! Everyone rose to their feet, cheering.
- As he ran down almost the entire length of the field, he could see the goal posts in his sights ... and to his left, our mother. Yup, there she was - running down the sidelines, keeping right up there with my brother as he headed into the end zone. Quite the sight - and one I'm sure my brother will never forget either.

The fans went wild as Eddie crossed the line and scored a touchdown. We were never quite sure if the crowd was cheering for my brother's amazing touchdown play or my mother's ability to keep up with him for the entire 90 yards!!

Just a note: The following year ... the school put a fence around the field.
Coincidence?

Just a Note That's Worth Repeating

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month

I was reminded, while chatting with a group at the pool this summer, that some women think if you're over 65 years of age, you don't need an annual mammogram. Not true. So, with this in mind, I'm sharing my story, once again, hoping it makes a difference in someone's life.

Like most of you, admittedly, I never paid much attention to the Public Awareness advertisement for "One in Eight Women will develop breast cancer". (I'm sure you've seen it ... it's the one that has 7 white, and 1 pink paper doll cut-outs.) Why would I? I had no family history of breast cancer, and I always went faithfully for my annual mammogram. But in 2019, I became painfully aware of every single magazine advertisement, television commercial and billboard for breast cancer awareness.

It was March when I received the telephone call (two weeks after my annual mammogram) telling me that it was ME who was the one in eight. I immediately thought, "Nah, they must have made a mistake!" After all, I was in my late 60's, I didn't have ANY symptoms, no lump, no family history, and I felt great! But after I viewed the films, I saw for myself, there was no mistake ... indeed, I had breast cancer.

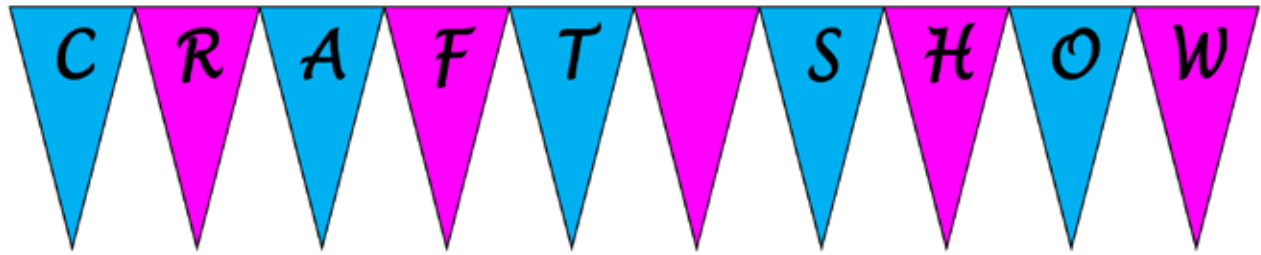

Due to early detection, fortunately, the cancer was still in its early stages, so I had options. I was told I could wait and see if it becomes more invasive and then act on it, or I could deal with it now. Well, I've never been a 'wait and see' kind of gal, so I proceeded to set up consultation appointments with two different local breast cancer specialists the very next day. The two doctors each had a plan of action that were at totally opposite ends of the spectrum, leaving me frustrated and very confused.

Then a recommendation from my niece's mother-in-law led me to a third doctor. During that consultation, the doctor explained in detail the type of breast cancer I had developed. After we talked about my lifestyle and my expectations, she then recommended a procedure that we both agreed would have the best results for me. ALL my questions and concerns were answered, and my mind was put at ease. After three separate and very different consultations, I finally found my Doctor, AND happy to report that I am now 7+ years cancer free.

I've said it before, but this is worth repeating – "Thank you" to all the women who shared their personal cancer stories with me when I was first diagnosed - it made my journey a lot less lonely.

- Researchers say the incidence of breast cancer increases with age, and almost half of all new breast cancers in the U.S. are diagnosed in women aged 65 or over.
- Have a monthly self-breast exam and inform your doctor of any concerns.
- Do not put off having your Annual Mammogram - Early Detection Saves Lives! Also - if you have 'dense breast tissue' talk to your doctor to see if getting an Ultrasound, along with Mammogram, is right for you. A routine dense breast tissue ultrasound was key in detecting early stage of breast cancer for me.
- If it's not an emergency situation, always get a second (or THIRD) opinion!
- Men, not just women, develop breast cancer, so report concerns to your doctor.

STILL PAYING IT FORWARD Your Battery is the Heart of Your Cell Phone

Replacing a phone battery can be a costly necessity to the point of just buying a new phone. Here are some tips to help preserve your phone's battery life.

- Avoid charging to more than 80% capacity.
- Do not let the device go dead.
- Leaving the phone in the charging mode overnight may cause mild overheating.
- Adjust the screen visibility brightness as necessary and avoid maximum brightness if possible.
- Use slow charging as much as possible. Fast charging is more convenient but may cause excessive heat. Charging on car voltage system, or flash chargers, are not recommended.
- Avoid using the phone when charging.
- Use only manufacturer's original charger - using off-brand chargers could ruin your battery. MFI certified for an iPhone and USB-IF CERTIFIED for an Android phone.
- Limit Background App activity by closing the App windows after use.
- Restart your phone every day for security and virus updates.
- You can check your Battery Health by going to SETTINGS > BATTERY > Scroll to Check Usage and Overall Health
- Constantly charging the phone to 100% decreases its recharging capability; i.e. - it will recharge to a maximum of 80% then 70% then 60% until it will not hold a charge for more than a few hours.

NEW SPRN COMMITTEES

NEW OPPORTUNITIES FOR RESIDENTS

Research has shown that engaging in productive/social activities can help maintain your wellbeing and independence as we grow older. A senior citizen with an active lifestyle; is able to improve their memory and thinking abilities, able to cope and recover from difficult situations, feel productive and useful, and is happier.

The Silver Ridge Park North HOA is offering the opportunity to its residents to participate in the Volunteer Committee Programs listed below. If you would like to get involved, feel productive, and help your community, simply contact the SRPN HOA office during normal business hours and say, "I want to join a committee!"

Do it for your community. Do it for your neighbor. Do it for yourself!

WELCOME COMMITTEE

The Welcome Committee consists of a group that will put together a Welcome Basket with useful items and information (activities, events, opportunities) about our community and the surrounding area. As this is a New Committee, the group will be given the opportunity to expand on how to make our newest residents feel at home in their new neighborhood.

COMMON GROUNDS COMMITTEE

The Commons Ground Committee will have the opportunity to help beautify the natural surroundings of our community. Clean up will consist mostly of collecting debris, disposing of broken tree branches, and some raking. There will be no shrub or tree removal. As this is another new committee, the group will be given the opportunity to expand on how to improve natural beauty of our common grounds.

ARCHITECTURE COMMITTEE

Volunteers on the committee will be asked to help follow up with Shed/Architectural requests from our residents under the guidance of our assigned Trustee. This may include a visit to a residence, and/or group discussions concerning how a situation falls under the SRPN Covenants before being presented to the Trustees.

POOL MAINTENANCE COMMITTEE

Members for the Pool Maintenance Committee will be responsible for placing the pool vacuum into the pool each evening and removing it from the pool in the morning. They will also be asked to prepare the pool area and furniture for the Pool Season in May '27 and doing the same at the end of the season in September '27. The Committee will need to have an understanding of the Pool Company's Contract, who services the pool for the current season.

POOL MONITOR COMMITTEE

Within this committee, the community will need a Head Pool Monitor to organize the Monitor's Schedule, train all new and returning Pool Monitors, enforce the SRPN Pool Rules as written, and have a good knowledge of testing the chemical levels for the pool. Pool Monitors will report to the Head Pool Monitor and be responsible for their assigned shift, enforcing the SRPN Pool Rules, and conducting pool chemical testing/maintaining the proper recording in the daily journal.

SRPN SHOPPING BUS INFORMATION

The SRPN Bus Driver will stop at our Resident's Home to pick them up, assist passengers with loading their bags onto the bus, and assist by bringing their bags to their door.
